

Site Analysis

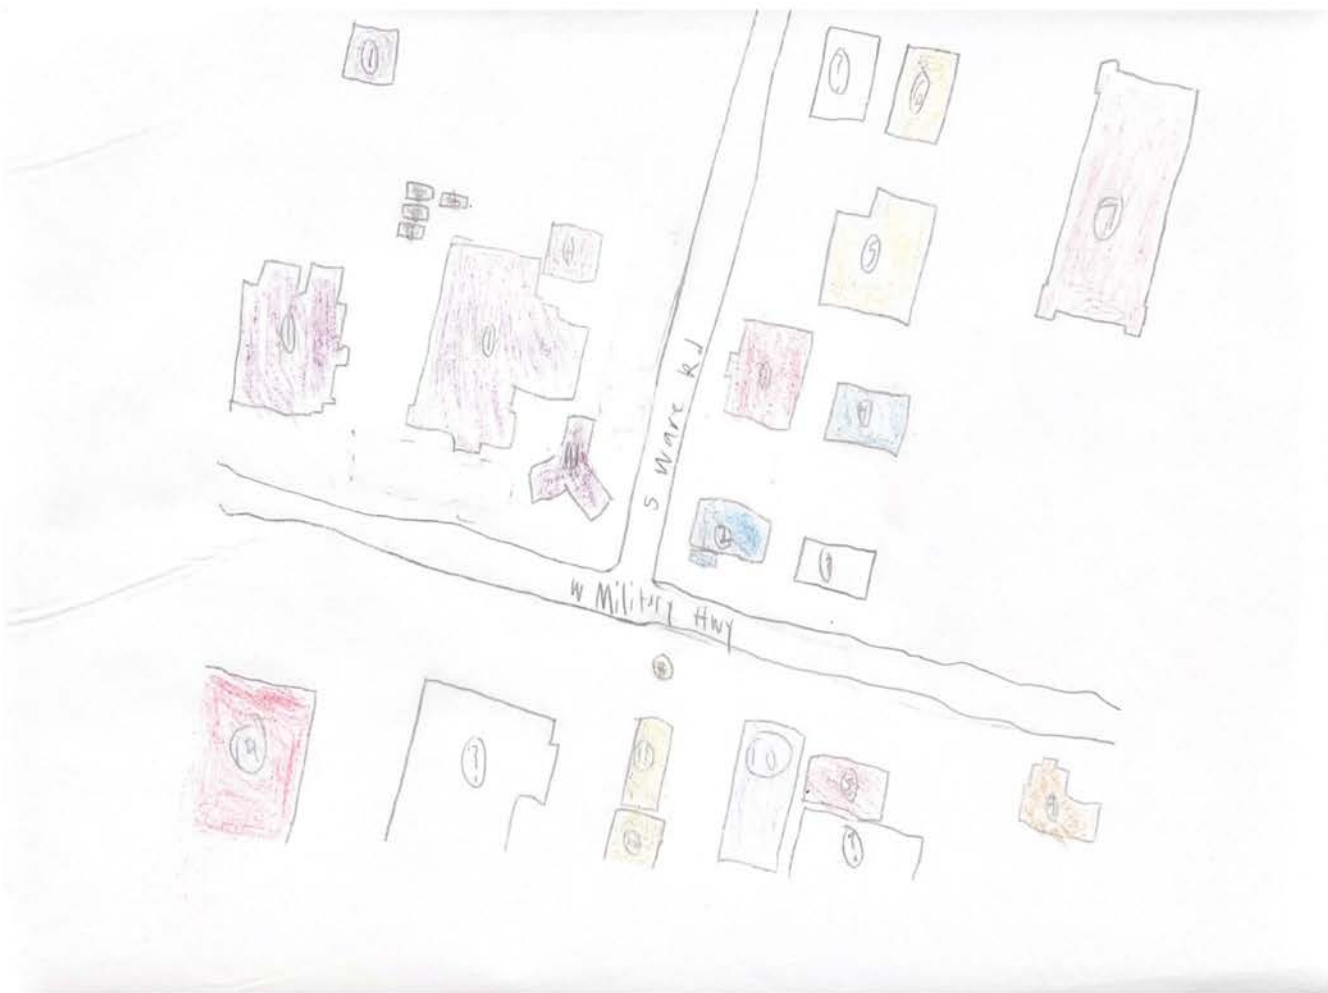

Located near south shary road, the site for my monument will be built on STC-Tech Campus grounds. While doing this assignment, I learned about the importance of studying the site for a project that one is planning to build. One has to analyze the site to see if it is the perfect spot for their project. If it isn't, then they may want to make some changes such as removing trees or laying down the foundation to adapt to the area.

In this photograph, We are looking at the site from the corner of this pathway. Once the monument is built, it will be pretty hard to miss.

In this photograph, we would be walking across the top of the parking lot near South Shary Road. There would be pathway that lead into the amphitheater/lecture hall of the monument.

This is what the site looks like from where the sign to the campus is.
