INTRODUCTION

- In my previous presentation, I proposed to photograph my parent's bedroom for my interior photography assignment. While taking the photos, I had to think about how I was going to help my audience identify the location. How would they know that it was my parent's room? I decided to take multiple pictures from different areas of the room. There are subtle hints that propose that my parents sleep in that room, including pictures, mementos, books, and more. The daylight really made the interior look more natural. Another thing I did was take a picture of my parents' separate closets. Some parts of the closets were either brightly lit or very dark. To capture them, I had to adjust the white balance. For the landscape and architecture part, I went outside and took pictures of the exterior of the bedroom. I hope you'll like the shots I took of my parent's bedroom.
